WEST VIRGINIA TAKES PART IN CAPITAL NEWS

Events of Washington, D. C., Are Reported by Telegram's Correspondent There.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Former Congressman Harry C. Woodyard, of Spencer, is in Garfield hospital recovering from a surgical operation which was performed on his right arm, near the shoulder joint, on Sunday morning Mr. Woodyard's friends will be glad to learn that the wound is healing nicely, that he will be able to leave the hospital within ten days, and that he is assured by the surgeons that he has gotten permanent relief from intermittent attacks of pain to which he has been subject for several years. Instead of neuritis for which he had been treated when these attacks came on him, an X-ray examination made last week showed very plainly what his trouble was. There was a foreign deposit in the arm muscle under the shoulder bone which, it is thought, resulted from a strain undergone by Mr. Woodyard some years ago. Mrs. Woodyard is with her husband here.

The Alfalfa Club, of which Charles P. Light, of West Virginia, is one of the leading officers, entertained during the last week with a luncheon at the Willard in honor of the Marquis of Abernethy and Tremair, who has been one of the honored guests of the last week.

Miss Nannie Young, a teacher in the public schools of Charles Town, W. Va., and Ernest Robert Johnson, of Front Royal, Va., were married at Rockville, Md., this week, and have arrived in Washington to spend their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Graham, of Clarksburg, W. Va., who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Graham, have returned to their home.

Miss Marian Ernest and Miss Edith Shipman have returned to their home in Elkins, W. Va., after a visit or several days with friends and relatives in Washington, and Hyattsville.

Deeds have just been recorded for the sale and transfer of 40,000 acres of mountain land situated in Augusta and Highland counties, Va., and Pendleton county, W. Va., which have been sold to the United States government and made a part of the Shenandoah reserve. The land was sold by the Virginia Mining Company which is owned principally by Philadelphia interests, and the consideration was, it is said, in the neighborhood of $126,000. The deed when recorded covered fifty-four pages and required $126 in revenue stamps. The property is known as the Hollingsworth survey, and was deeded by the state of Virginia in 1794 to Levi Hollingsworth, of Philadelphia.

Many men and women of prominence in the United States began to arrive in Washington the latter part of the week, and others are still arriving to be in attendance at the meetings of the convention of the National Civic Federation which began its meetings at the Willard Monday.

AS A WOMAN SEES IT

By RHETA CHILDE DORR.

THE DISINHERITED.

Reading of the serious recruiting difficulties with which England is struggling one is apt to feel a mixture of contempt and indignation against the union working men who will not volunteer for service, and who threaten a general strike in case parliament passes a conscription act.

How did England come to breed such poor patriots, men who would rather their country lost the war than give up a tradition against conscription, who would actually contribute to a national disaster by calling out coal miners and munition workers?

England did it by taking the land away from the people, by reducing them to the position of tenants and at the same time fooling them with a pretense of political liberty.

Two incidents were impressed indelibly upon my mind in separate visits to England. I was stopping in a pension in Bloomsbury, my sitting room windows overlooking a small iron-fenced park, beautifully green. Assuming that it was open to the people who lived on the square I asked my landlady for the key.

"Oh, nobody has the key," she said. "That isn't a public park." "Whom does it belong to?" I asked and she replied that it was part of the holdings of the "Duke of Bedford." Didn't the Duke of Bedford ever go into the park? No, he had probably never seen it. Didn't anybody except the attendants ever go into the park? Yes, ten years ago one of the duke's secretaries had a garden party there.

It is thus all over England. Hundreds of thousands of acres of land are held from the people in parks, game preserves, estates. The people are in England, but not of it.

The other incident was the mobbing of Mrs. Pankhurst by a crowd of roughs, in revenge for her work in defeating their Liberal candidate for parliament. These men surrounded a shop where she had taken refuge. They knocked her down, tore half her clothing from her body, attacked her with their fists and heavy boots and might have killed her had not the police arrived.

This woman had dared to interfere with their politics, the one free thing they possessed! Their indignation was as real as it was ridiculous.

There is a terrible object lesson in all this for the United States. If we should have war thrust upon us within the next few years we should not, it is true, have to call on a whole nation of disinherited sons. But there may be many who have little liberty save at the polls. It is never too soon to begin to give them a country they can love.

of the week, and others are still arriving to be in attendance at the meetings of the convention of the National Civic Federation which began its meetings at the Willard Monday.

The program for the meetings is crowded full of interesting discussions of civic affairs of national interest. Among the most important topics which will be considered are:— employer's profit sharing plans, the status of workmen's compensation laws, the causes of industrial accidents, the minimum wage laws of the United States, the progress that has been made in industrial hygiene for the last thirty years, the changes in labor conditions for the same period, the growth of welfare work for employees by employers, pensions for federal, state, municipal and industrial employees and present need of changes in the food and drug supply of the country. Women are equally as prominent in the civic organization as men and will take a very active part in the meetings. Seven states are now organized and will send women representatives to the meetings of the auxiliary body. West Virginia is represented on the executive council by Mrs. J. Allison Hodges, of Richmond, Va., who represents Virginia and West Virginia combined. Mrs. Arthur Lee, of Elkins, is the West Virginia member of the executive committee.

Milton J. Mills at Canterbury, and Clyde M. Rightmire, of Thornwood, have been commissioned fourth class postmasters. The president has sent to the Senate for confirmation the appointment of R. L. Evans, who was recommended by Representative Littlepage, to be postmaster at Emeryville. William E. Pritchard has been appointed postmaster at Stowe, Logan county, to succeed J. E. Bryant, resigned.

The House of Representatives has passed two special pension bills, by Representative Neely, which provide $30 a month each for Silas Morgan, of Bromfield, and Thomas W. Hill, of Moundsville.

Bills were introduced in the House today by Representative Littlepage providing for an increase in the pensions of Woodford W. Kenney and Jacob Franz, of Diamond, and Mrs. Rose Mathewney, of Charleston.

Henry Borman, of Wheeling, an aged and well known resident of that city, served over four years on the Union side in the Civil war. He has two honorable discharges, one issued in his own name and one issued under a fictitious name. He also has a charge of desertion against him in his record. Yet, there is evidence to show that Borman was a first-rate fighting man. He liked fighting so well that he deserted and reenlisted under an assumed name to get to the front. Thence on he was in every battle with Sheridan's troopers, and those battles were many and bloody.

These interesting facts as to Borman's military adventures were told before the committee on military affairs by Representative Neely, who is backing up a bill to get the charge of desertion expunged from Borman's soldiering record. The committee seemed to be favorably impressed with the story and the evidence submitted to back it up.

According to the facts presented, Borman spent nearly three years with troops guarding property. He didn't get within miles of real fighting. That kind of soldiering did not suit him and when he was discharged, he claims to have reenlisted on the promise that he would be sent to the front to participate in the real business of war. Instead, he was sent back to his old comrades who were doing guard duty. Then it was he deserted, but within two days had re-enlisted in the service under an assumed name and became one of Sheridan's soldiers. He had his wish to do real fighting amply gratified under that enlistment, and was again honorably discharged, but not as Henry Borman, but the fictional name he had chosen.

With four years of service to his credit and in possession of two honorable discharges, and with the years hanging heavy upon him, Henry Borman wants above anything else before he answers to the final taps, that the blot on his military record on file in the capital of the nation be helped to save, shall be erased.

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this pint of old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Pull directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough and heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of Pinex on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract combined with gualacal and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
